OAKDALE, Pa. — (March 20, 2018) — Matt Poole joined TIGG March 5 as the company's new Technical Sales Representative. Matt will be responsible for inside sales activities associated with TIGG's products and services for both liquid and vapor phase applications.

Matt previously worked as an Application Engineer where he oversaw design testing for USCG certifications, environmental exposure and IP certification. Matt also has an extensive background in water treatment systems from the design stage through installation. Additionally, he has participated in environmental remediation projects with many large OEMs and government authorities. Mr. Poole holds a B.S. degree in Earth Science from Pennsylvania State University with minors in Soil Science, and Watershed and Resource Management.

Jim Kearns, Sales Account Director said, "Matt has joined TIGG at a great time, our business has been increasing steadily and we need his expertise to assist with our customer demands. I have no doubt Matt will be a success."
